

Indianapolis, when he first received the nomination. The president was surrounded by Secretaries Tracy, Noble and Mack, and by Mrs. McKee, Russell Harrison, Lieutenant Parker and other members of his private family. It was a memorable scene and only one face was missing to complete the picture, that of Mrs. Harrison, who lay upon a sick bed less than one hundred feet away, anxious, no doubt, but as yet unconscious that the extreme anxiety of the past few days had been dispelled and that her husband, Benjamin Harrison, had been selected to lead the republican party in the coming campaign for the presidency. In a moment Mrs. McKee embraced and kissed her father, Russell Harrison congratulated him, Mrs. Parker in her exuberant mood kissed him and all the cabinet officers in the executive mansion rushed to the president's side and heartily congratulated him. They were followed by Mr. Halford and two dozen paper men who had been in the telegraph room for an hour previous, hearing the news as it came from the wire.

He Made Pleasant Remarks.
He shook hands with them and had some pleasant remarks to make to many warm greetings that he received. In an informal way the whole party exchanged congratulations. The president seemed to be the coolest person present. He did not in the least betray any emotion, but stood behind his desk with Mrs. McKee at his side, receiving with eminent satisfaction the many kind compliments showered upon him. When, after some ten minutes informal talk, the president responded to a universal request from the newspaper men present, he said:

"Well, gentlemen, and I have had a good deal of intercourse with newspaper men. It has been mostly at arm's length except on a few occasions of this kind, and yet very agreeable to me. I have always been open to a friendly call from any of you, and any information about public business has been at your disposal. I can only say that I have brought you here to the event that fills my mind is the thought of gratitude and thanks to the great multitude of friends who have in this way and diverse other ways expressed approval of every consequence, though possibly not and that I have never attempted to serve the country upon republican lines. I claim no other credit than that of having attempted without sparing myself as to labor to discharge these public duties conscientiously.

Does Not Expect Democrats to Approve.
"I cannot expect my democratic friends to think I have done right lines always, and I have been very gratifying to me to know that many things have secured the approval of political opponents. I have been filled with the thought that this country was coming to an epoch when the flag and such things that it symbolized will be upon a still higher plane than now, and when our influence among the powers of the earth will be enlarged wisely and yet energetically. I have a sincere love for all of our people. I exclude no section. I take into my affection and respect all states, all our people. In entering upon this campaign I shall do so without malice toward any one. I think I have sometimes been suspected of being very little a politician from the fact that I have never drawn inside my party personal lines. I have tried to treat every one with that respect to which their station entitled them, and I never in any case suggested, much less demanded, personal loyalty from any body. I have asked of all public officers, a fair, faithful performance of duty. I have felt great regret that I was unable to find a suitable place for every deserving friend, but I have insisted that I did not desire those who could not appoint to place. As I have light and strength I have tried to discharge my duty for the public good. I thank you all for the many evidences of your kindness. I wish also to express my thanks with a heart that overflows with gratitude to the faithful body of friends who have been so zealous in my behalf and more than that to the great body of well disposed, order loving, patriotic Americans who have always and everywhere received me kindly." (Applause.)

A Pleasant Picture.
He stood behind his desk and his speech was entirely unaided. Upon his desk was a great mass of flowers and the open windows looked out upon the green lawns of the executive mansion with the Washington monument looming up in the background. Such was the scene that presented itself as the president came forward delivering his speech. It was an impressive scene and one that will not soon fade from the memory of those who were present. It was from this scene, alive with excitement, that President Harrison went to the sick room of his wife, where he informed her of his success and received her warm greetings.

While the president was in his office room the small crowd in the telegraph room was a study. Benjamin Harrison was master, Private Secretary Halford and nearly everybody else kept the roll as the bulletins came in. Secretary Atkins, his face wreathed in smiles, and Attorney General Miller, sedate and dignified, sat near him, surrounding the operator were the newspaper men and others. It was not a noisy crowd for Mr. Halford told them that quiet must be maintained or else a bulletin might be missed, as the operator was on a wire where messages could not be repeated, and where a "break" would be disastrous.

Waiting the Vote.
While waiting when the roll began to be received, Mr. Halford noted each gain or loss over the vote of last night on the Alabama contest, which was taken as a basis of strength. Each gain was noted with satisfaction, but the fact that McKinley was being pushed forward made a feeling of nervousness in some quarters that was quite apparent.

Russell Harrison, who had been taking the bulletins to the president, showed his anxiety plainly. When the bulletin stated that a poll of the states had been demanded the opinion was freely expressed that Senator Quay was causing the delay for effect, and it was recognized that the critical moment had arrived. But when Pennsylvania's vote showed a gain of ten for Harrison it was felt the crisis had passed and the danger of a stampede had been averted. All appeared easier, and Postmaster General Waukegan's face began to be radiant with hope and expectation as each state was reported and the result was nearer and nearer. The little crowd became more and more excited until the operator exclaimed almost under his breath, "Harrison wins," adding a second later, "won." Mr. Halford jumped from his chair and stopped his daughter, who had asked the privilege of being the first to tell the president, as she rushed out of the door. A moment later and this news was received in official form, and it was then that the president was surprised with a kiss and embrace.

CLARKSON IS RETAINED.
He Will Remain Chairman for the Present.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 10.—The committee to notify President Harrison of his renomination met tonight after the adjournment of the convention. There was nearly a with Governor McKinley, chairman, it was decided to meet at the Ebbett house, Washington, at noon on the 20th inst., and fix upon that day to perform the duty assigned them. That date was chosen with reference to a ratification meeting to be held in New York city at about that date which Governor McKinley has promised to attend. The intention is to have the whole committee representing every state and territory in the Union present at that meeting and take part in it. A meeting of the new national committee was held tonight, forty-five of the fifty-one members being present. The admission of Alaska and Indian Territory to representation in the national convention increased the national committee from forty-one to fifty-one. A temporary organization was effected by the selection of J. S. Clarkson as chairman, M. DeYoung as secretary and Colonel Swords as sergeant at arms. This was in pursuance to a statement by Mr. Clayton of Arkansas, to the effect that it was the desire of the president's friends that Mr. Clarkson, for the present at least, should take charge of the organization.

A representation from the Typographical union No. 6 of New York, including the president, was introduced by J. B. Mulholland. They called to assure the committee that the labor organizations would support the ticket. Mr. Reid's relations with the Typographical union now being perfectly satisfactory. After the representatives had retired the committee proceeded to consider the respective claims of Messrs. Youngblood and Parsons to a place on the committee from Alabama, and at 1 o'clock were still engaged with the matter. Major McKinley left Minneapolis tonight and just before he departed he said to a reporter for the United Press: "The ticket is magnificent. The convention did the right thing and just what I wanted it to do. There is no feeling and we are going to win."

The committee to notify Mr. Reid of his nomination as vice-president organized by selecting W. T. Durbin of Indiana as chairman and J. B. Black of Missouri as secretary. It was decided to assemble at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, Tuesday, June 21, and after meeting with Mr. Reid will attend the ratification meeting.

"THERE, I TOLD YOU SO!"
Nearly Everybody Knew It Would Be Ben.

All day yesterday excited crowds gathered around the bulletin boards at the Western Union office and the different hotels. Men walked over each other in wild eagerness to see the last bulletin and the whole performance was a survival of the fittest. When the convention began its wild cheering for Blaine the crowds around the boards seemed to have caught the spirit of the enthusiasm and everybody awaited that result of the first ballot. When Depew began his speech, seconding President Harrison's nomination, the crowds again caught the spirit and everybody said Harrison is the man. During the interval awaiting the result of the first ballot the suspense was intense. When the ballot was posted everyone seemed stunned. Even the most enthusiastic admirers of President Harrison had not dreamed that his victory would be so easily achieved.

Last night politics was the one absorbing topic in all the hotels, and every body seemed satisfied with the work of the convention. Even Dan Soper looked upon it and called it good, and Daniel doesn't call things good unless they are good. Daniel gained marked political distinction, too, last night. He was the only man to be found in Grand Rapids who had not predicted the result. Daniel had declared that Bessie wasn't in it, and he wouldn't go back on his declaration.

"Just snits me," said Judge Brown of Big Rapids. "I was a Harrison man first, last and all the time. I admire Mr. Blaine, but his contest for the nomination has been 'A Comedy of Errors' all through."

GRATIFYING TO HIM.
The Indianapolis Journal Will Say It Is So.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 10.—Speaking of the renomination the Journal will say in the morning: "The renomination of President Harrison is a great triumph for him, and for the republican party. Personally he could not have afforded to retire from public life at the end of one term. His rank among presidents and his place in history are already fixed and he need not have feared the judgment of the historian, even if he had not been renominated. Nevertheless it cannot be gratifying to him to have the endorsement of a renomination with the assurance that it carries the approval of the voting millions of the republican party."

MIGHT HAVE BEEN A GREAT PANIC.
Terrible Suspense of Thursday Night's Half-Hour of Darkness.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 10.—Not one of the participants in last night's session will ever forget the suspense of that half-hour of darkness. It seemed more like hours. At midnight, when the electric lights collapsed and the great hall was in darkness save for the glimmer of a couple of scores of gas lights that surrounded the upper tier of seats, it was so dark that the faces of those but a few feet distant could scarcely be distinguished. Of the 30,000 people fairly a fourth were women and a good many more were probably men of not more than the average strength of nerve or self-possession. A cry of fire or even a sudden movement in any part of the hall would without question have precipitated a panic that would have resulted in the sacrificing of hundreds of lives and the maiming of an untold number. It would have been a scene of horror never equaled in history, and yet although the suspense of every man and woman in the place were strung to the highest tension every one of them acted as though he or she felt that the preservation of honor and quiet was in their keeping. Every one of the 30,000 was a hero or heroine for the time being. It seemed as though the sun, the moon and stars, and when the buzzing and snapping of the carous was succeeded by a great flood of light one great breath and buzz of relief and thankfulness went up from the assembly.

CONGRATULATIONS TO HARRISON.
Ex-Senator Palmer Gets in the First Message—Gossip of the Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 10.—Ex-Senator Thomas W. Palmer of Michigan, president of the Columbian world's fair, sent a telegram to the president announcing the adjournment of the caucus of Harrison delegates yesterday, congratulating him upon his assured renomination. He probably got in the first message.

One of the Alger men, speaking of the Harrison caucus now in session, on the convention last night, said that the mistake the managers made was that they counted delegates and alternates both.

The following telegram was received by Mr. McCheser last night from A. D. Shaw of the Yarmouth National association, a copy of one sent to President Harrison:

"LINCOLN, Neb., June 9.
"To the President, Washington, D. C.:
"The third annual convention of the railroad yardmasters now in session here tender you a vote of thanks for your personal interest and official messages in behalf of the better protection of lives and limbs of railroad men, and have adopted resolutions asking congress to legislate on this important subject without delay."

FLANAGAN'S SUCCESSOR.
An South Dakota Delegate With an Yell of a Coyote.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 10.—A successor to "What-Are-We-Here-For Flanagan" of Texas has made a new record for himself at the first session. He is a delegate from South Dakota, and his specialty consists in emitting a peculiar sounding whoop at the conclusion of each speech or round of applause. The whoop is a faithful imitation of a coyote's yell, and is given forth just as the last word of a speaker is uttered or the last note of applause has died out. The peculiar yell attracted the attention of everybody and a loud laugh followed it each time it was uttered.

Endorsed by the Tribune.
New York, June 10.—The Tribune: Merit wins. The people recognize and gladly reward faithful and effective service. All the efforts of zealous friends would have been of avail had not the representative millions behind that President Harrison by really rare sagacity, fidelity and firmness had deserved and honor. The nomination of Whitehead Reid for vice-president completed the work of the convention. On that subject it becomes the Tribune to speak briefly and simply.

Pleased With the Ticket.
The president sent the following in reply to a dispatch of congratulation:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.
Hon. Whitehead Reid, Opik Farm, Westchester, N. Y.
Thanks for your cordial congratulations. I am most happy to be able to express my sincere satisfaction that the convention has named you for the vice presidency.

BENJAMIN HARRISON.
Michener Wires His Thanks.

The following telegram was wired to-night:

"WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.
"L. T. Michener, Minneapolis:
"The president has already, to the newspaper men here, expressed his gratitude and thanks, but he desires me to send them to you especially, and to all near you, and to the faithful and devoted Indiana delegation."
"Signed," E. W. HALFORD."

DUN'S VIEW OF TRADE.
An Increase in Volume Over Last Year's Business.

New York, June 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade will show that the aggregate volume of trade in spite of all obstacles is greater than a year ago. Labor difficulties in building trades are passing away, but there is prospect of a serious conflict in iron manufacturing, between western employers and workers. Confidence in the future is general. There is more demand for woollens and linens are dull. The condition of trade and industries on the whole exceptionally favorable for a month. The coming crops yet uncertain and in a year of presidential contest. Business failures during the past seven days: number, United States, 168; Canada, 24; total, 192, as compared with 207 last year.

Women Pass Many Resolutions.
MADISON, Wis., June 10.—The State W. C. T. U. on Thursday adopted a score of resolutions against the liquor traffic and the sale of intoxicating beverages; in favor of Sunday rest and the closing of the world's fair for women's suffrage; for the Bennett school law; against the cigarette habit and tight dressing; against the use of pictures of women for advertising purposes and moral depravity; against the barmaid system, etc.

A Flourishing Order.
MONTREAL, June 10.—At a meeting of the High Court Catholic Order of Foresters High Chief Ranger Cahill, of Chicago, delivered the annual address, in which he declared that the order had had a remarkable development both in the United States and Canada. The order now comprises 299 courts, with a membership of 22,453.

Begets the Forger, Captured.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—Horace G. Beggs, the Oakland forger, who absconded with over $12,000 belonging to the Electric Railroad Company, was captured Thursday near Sissons while on his way to Oregon. He had $5,500 with him, and his companion, named Gallagher, had a considerable amount, but the exact sum is not given.

Won by Cornell.
ITHACA, N. Y., June 10.—The Cornell freshmen crew defeated the Columbia freshmen in a 3-mile race on Lake Cayuga Thursday afternoon by about 35 lengths. The time was 16 minutes 20 seconds for Cornell and 11 minutes 25 seconds for Columbia.

OFF FOR THE EAST

Daisy Lodge Delegates to Start Tomorrow

FOR THE PITTSBURG REUNION

Past-Exalted Ruler a Candidate for Office.
The Party Which Is to Take the Jolly Trip East.

Tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock eighty members of Daisy chapter of the B. P. O. E. will leave the city over the D. & N. in their special train of two parlor cars, a chair car and a baggage car, to attend the annual reunion of the order and annual meeting of the grand lodge of the order. They will be accompanied by fifty invited guests, twenty-five of whom are the wives of the members. The railroad people have guaranteed that this shall be the fastest run ever made between here and Detroit. The party will take dinner in London at the Tecumseh house at 1:30 o'clock Sunday and will arrive at Buffalo at 5:30 in the evening. They will be joined on the route by fifteen Elks from Kalamazoo and ten from Flint. The train will be decorated with a banner bearing the inscription, "Grand Rapids Lodge, B. P. O. E., and at one end a daisy. The Daisy's official headquarters will be at Tift house, the second floor of which has been engaged for their accommodation. Daisy lodge, in full uniform of unique character, will participate in the great parade of Tuesday and hopes to carry off the prize, a magnificent solid silver trophy cup. The lodge will present the name of C. W. Chauncey, past secretary, past exalted ruler and past district deputy of Michigan, for grand secretary of the national organization.

These Will Go Along.
Among the prominent people who will accompany the party are: James McInnes and wife, G. Harris De Graaf, L. E. Carroll, Lloyd Brezee, John S. Farr, N. C. Johnson, William L. Tyler, past exalted ruler; Charles H. Garwood, L. M. Weston and others. James B. McInnes will be captain of the parade and Fred Schriver lieutenant. William H. Boyu will act as quartermaster during the trip. Warren Swetland will have charge of the headquarters at Buffalo and George K. Ferry will have charge of the trip to Detroit. The lodge will furnish refreshment and entertainment on the trip. The committee which has made arrangements for the great trip is Warren Swetland, George Perry, John E. Killeen, A. F. Schaefer, D. H. McCarthy, George D. Bostock and Kelly. They have been working for the past five months. Grand Rapids lodge No. 1 of the Order of Artiles, a side issue to the Elks, will be represented in force.

Arrived Here Destitute.
Joseph La Pont, wife and two children, from Marietta, Ohio, arrived in town last night in destitute circumstances. Mrs. La Pont was taken to the Woman's home and hospital, and her husband was given lodging at headquarters. They left Marietta for Muskegon, where they had formerly resided. At Mansfield, Ohio, the woman was taken sick, and it was necessary to stop off there until she had recovered. He secured employment and finally got money to bring his family to this city. He hopes to secure employment here and be able to go on with his family to Muskegon soon.

SENATOR HILL DENIES IT.
Says He Has Written No Letter Withdrawing from the Presidential Race.
WASHINGTON, June 10.—Senator Hill, through his private secretary, denied to the Evening Post correspondent today, flatly, unequivocally and without qualification the report published in the New York Times this morning to the effect that he had written a letter withdrawing from the race. "I deny it as plainly as you can," Private Secretary Barmingham added, "The report is without the slightest foundation of truth. It has absolutely no ground upon which to rest. The senator has written no such letter and has no intention of writing one. Please state this as coming from me, in order that it may be regarded as official."

THEY, N. Y., June 10.—Edward Murphy has given a denial of the New York Times' statement that Senator Hill has written a letter withdrawing from the race. "There is no basis of any sort," said Mr. Murphy. "For the report that I have a letter from Mr. Hill withdrawing from the canvass for the nomination for President. The matter of Mr. Hill's withdrawal has never been considered by his friends. I repeat I have no letter of withdrawal from Mr. Hill and that I never heard of one until the false statement about it reached me this morning."

FRUITLESS HOUSE SESSION.
The Congressmen Do But Little Business These Days.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—A fruitless attempt was made to secure the passage of bills on the private calendar today, and after two hours devoted to attempts to secure a quorum and repeated calls of the house this program was abandoned, and Mr. Wise (democrat) of Virginia succeeded in inducing the house to consider several bridge bills, which were passed. A favorable report was also submitted on the resolution directing an investigation of the Reading railway deal. The consideration of the resolution was postponed until next week. Bills were passed authorizing the territory of New Mexico to send bonds and erect a new capitol building, and providing for a term of the United States and district court at Binghamton, N. Y. A motion for adjournment till Monday was agreed to after this session. The house then took a recess till 9 o'clock.

A Fatal Railway Accident.
ATLANTA, Ga., June 10.—An accident occurred on the Atlanta & Chattahoochee railway at 1:30 o'clock today by which three persons were killed and several injured. When near the boom of a steep grade the front car mounted the rails and turned over and down an embankment about fifteen feet high. The car was completely demolished.

Satisfies the Recorder.
NEW YORK, June 10.—The Recorder: President Harrison has been nominated. It is the wisest choice the convention could have made. He will lead the republicans to victory in '92 as he led it to victory in '88.

Blaine Wouldn't Be Interviewed.
BOSTON, June 10.—Ex-Secretary Blaine and Mrs. Blaine left for Bar Harbor this evening. Mr. Blaine said not consent to be interviewed.
